Third Sunday of Lent

Theme/Call To Worship

The season of Lent challenges us to question our conventional human standards of wisdom and power, to see the world from God's perspective as revealed in Jesus Christ.

Introduction To The Word

Exodus 20:1-17: The first reading from Exodus 20 recounts the Ten Commandments that Moses received from God on Mount Sinai. Of the Ten Commandments, the first three address our relationship with God, and the remaining seven discuss our relationship with each other.

1 Corinthians 1:22-25: The second reading is from Paul's First Letter to the Corinthians. Paul proclaimed to the Corinthians "Christ crucified," but this idea of crucified Messiah became a "stumbling block" to the Jews who "demanded signs" from a messianic figure and the Greeks who looked for "wisdom" in their leaders.

John 2:13-25: The Gospel reading is John's account of the cleansing of the Temple, an event that was described by Gospel writers, but John treated this event differently. First, he moves the cleansing of the Temple to the beginning of Jesus' public ministry. Second, John offers more graphic details about the Temple event. Jesus is clearly upset about "making my Father's house a marketplace." Scholars have often debated about the meaning of Jesus' statement, because the people in the temple were not in violation of Jewish law, but Jesus' anger may have been rooted in the people's lack of complete commitment to God, their disregard for each other, and their loss of the true meaning behind the Jewish sacrificial system.

" Francis realized that the commission given to him (by God) at San Damiano was not simply about restoring church buildings, but building up the life of the Church itself."
